RUNE VAMMEN LESNER AWARDED LECTURER OF THE YEAR AT “DEN GYLDNE FUGL”

Assistant professor Rune Vammen Lesner was awarded Lecturer of the Year at Studenterlauget's "Den Gyldne Fugl" award show earlier this month.

Rune received the award for his positive and innovative attitude, his great knowledge about mathematics and his extremely high level of performance in the lecture hall. Also, his wonderful ability to add a breath of fresh air to the otherwise heavy mathematics is very well-liked among the students.

Congratulations, Rune!

ECON IN THE MEDIA

How do we get the Department's research in the media, and how do we help researchers increase their media exposure?

These were the topics when Aarhus BSS' new press consultant Michael Schröder and Andreas Jensby from Aarhus BSS Communication paid a visit to the Department last Thursday.

Today, the press is much more than just traditional newspapers, TV and radio. Social media is becoming increasingly important, and Aarhus BSS Communication works strategically when evaluating how a good research story can achieve maximum media exposure. Often, this includes working with various media platforms for the same story, and also writing spin-off stories or several versions of the same story.

The communication partners and the consultants are as proactive as possible. However, the system is not watertight, and some great stories might not get the public attention that they deserve.

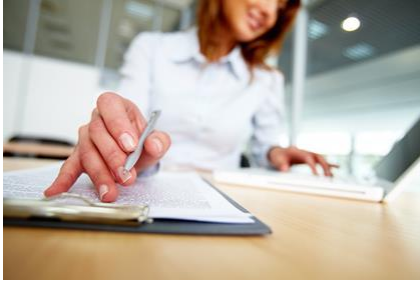

This means that the researchers also need to inform the press consultants if they believe that a research result might be interesting for the public. The press consultant is a service function which helps the researchers get their story in the media. If you have a story which you think might be interesting, all you have to do is send an email with the research article attached or a link.

Michael Schröder is 54 years old and graduated from the Danish School of Media and Journalism in 1990. For almost 20 years, he worked as a journalist – 11 of these at Morgenavisen Jyllands-Posten where he covered the areas of politics, business and finance.

In 2009, he changed career tracks and rather than chasing news, he started feeding the media messages and news stories in his capacity as press and communication consultant at the Department of Social Affairs and Employment in the City of Aarhus.

This will also be Michael Schröder's task at Aarhus BSS, and you can reach him at 87152195 or at schroder@au.dk.

LANGUAGE REVISION

Following the process of adjusting the administration at the Department, a language revision group has been established, and language revision is now done by one of the research secretaries of your section plus additional proofreaders who are familiar with the academic language of the particular section.

Who does proofreading

You may of course continue to send language revision assignments to the person that usually does language revision for you, but you may thus also contact one of the research secretaries of your section or one of the proof readers of your section.

See who does language revision for the section that you are in below:

- Accounting and Managerial Economics:
 - Annia Hoffmeyer
 - Thomas Stephansen

Papers

In connection with papers and other large language revision assignments, it is important that the author notifies the proofreader well in advance. Proofreading is a time-consuming task and as the proofreaders have multiple tasks, it is necessary to expect a reasonable span of time to do the proofreading. This may vary from time to time and from task to task. Estimated delivery time will be scheduled case by case in a dialogue between the author and the proofreader.

Before submission to the proofreader, the text must be thoroughly revised by the author and in principle ready for submission to the journal (apart from the language revision).

Exam papers

Exam papers must always be proofread, and the programme administrator will take this into account when setting a deadline for submission of exam papers. After language revision, the exam paper will be returned to the faculty member for final approval before it is sent to the exam office. Please remember the internal approval of the exam paper before sending it to the proofreader.

Other texts

Language revision can be of both English and Danish texts and is not confined to research papers, articles and exam papers - It may be a good idea to ask one of the proofreaders to go through e.g. PowerPoint presentations, questionnaires, letters and other texts with a large audience, even if you think that you do not need any assistance - you might discover that a language revision will improve your work.

PhD dissertations

PhD students should send the papers or chapters of their PhD dissertation for language revision before submitting the dissertation or before sending a paper to a journal. The PhD student should contact one of the research secretaries of his/her section regarding the language revision, and in order to achieve a satisfactory end product, this contact should be taken as soon as possible to agree on deadlines for the task. The dissertation must be sent for language revision chapter by chapter (paper by paper) – not all at once.

EDUCATION NEWS FROM THE DEAN'S OFFICE

Vice-Dean for Education Per Andersen has sent out a newsletter with the latest news within the area of education. Below are some points that may be of interest to you.

The role of Directors of Studies in connection with cheating at exams

Dean Thomas Pallesen has decided that the directors of studies must be consulted every time before an examiner or co-examiner brings a case regarding cheating at an exam before the AU Educational Law unit. As it is now, the directors of studies are not necessarily involved in such cases, but in connection with an increased focus on combatting cheating it has been decided that the procedure in future must be that the directors of studies are consulted every time a case of cheating at exams comes up.

New principles regarding scheduling

The faculty management team has decided to incorporate a number of new principles regarding scheduling at the full time education programmes at Aarhus BSS. The new principles are the result of a long process of meetings and negotiations at faculty and department level.

The principles will come into effect as from the autumn of 2017 but may already to some extent be implemented in connection with the scheduling in the spring of 2017.

Read more about the new principles here (in Danish)

In addition to Aarhus BSS' principles regarding scheduling, the Department has the following principles:

- We will strive to make it possible for lecturers who have to bring/pick up small children to/from daycare, kindergarten or SFO to have teaching between 8 am and 4 pm.
- We will do our best to comply with the wishes of external lecturers (especially at cand.merc.aud.).
- We will try to take account of planned participation in conferences, meetings, committees, seminars etc.

The analysis group regarding external relations

The faculty management team has decided to follow the recommendations made by the analysis group regarding external relations in a report that came out earlier this month. The decisions made by the faculty management team on the basis of the report are concerned with:

- A normalisation of the study administrative tasks within the area of further and continuing education (EVU).
- A strategy and action plan for income-generating activities
- Establishing the interface as regards communication, marketing and recruitment within the area of further and continuing education (EVU) and considerations regarding the possibility of improving the budget for this area.

The work to make these measures come to life has commenced.

Analysis and working groups regarding study administration

An analysis group under the faculty management team is working on making recommendations so as to improve the study administration at BSS.

The analysis group has established a working group which is to look at the unpractical interface and processes in relation to the BSS study administration. The working group consists of the following members: Anni Bækgaard Langberg and Mariann Holmslykke from BSS Studies, Per Andersen from the Dean's Office, and Kirsten Jakobsen and Lene Bavnbek Enevoldsen who act as representatives for the Departments at BSS.

The analysis group will make its recommendations to the faculty management on the basis of the results of the working group. The faculty management team expects to make decisions in relation to the future set-up of the study administration in January 2017.
