DANISH JOURNAL OF MANAGEMENT AND BUSINESS - SPECIAL ISSUE

The Danish Journal of Management and Business (formerly published in Danish as Ledelse & Erhvervsøkonomi) has announced a call for papers for a special issue on Performance Management.

The special issue on Performance Management aims to address new developments and thinking in relation to performance management, including new perspectives, new techniques, approaches and related analysis designed to improve individual, group organisational and inter-organisational performance. The special issue seeks to develop an understanding in and across both private and public sector organisations. The special issue aims to be multi-disciplinary drawing from, amongst others, the fields of strategy, operations, marketing, accounting, innovation management and organisational behaviour.

Addressing the aim of the issue, all types of research methods can be feasible. However, empirical research is considered particularly important to get a deeper understanding of the role of performance management in contemporary organisations.

The deadline for submissions is 30 July 2013.

Enquiries regarding the special issue should be sent to the editors of the special issue, professor Per Nikolaj Bukh (pnb@business.aau.dk) or professor Jan Mouritsen (jm.om@cbs.dk).

STAFF PORTRAIT: MARCEL TURKENSTEEN

This time Marcel Turkensteen has agreed to answer the questions for the staff portrait. Thank you, Marcel. Marcel is Associate Professor at the Department and is located in building 2628(M), office 328.

How long have you been employed at the Department of Economics and Business?

For five and a half years now. I started when it was called the Aarhus School of Business.

What is your background?

I am from the Netherlands. Not Holland, that's the crowded place in the west; I'm from the relatively quiet part north of the country. I have studied Econometrics and Operations Research at the University of Groningen and did my PhD in Operations Research at the same department, though I was physically located in the Marketing research and teaching group. Then, after my PhD, I moved to Denmark, where I arrived in 2007.

What are your main areas of research?

My field of research is operations research (OR), the field that is about optimally utilizing resources for mainly production and logistics. It focuses on the constructing of computer science-like methodologies for solving problems, such as the amount of inventory to be kept, or the routes to be chosen.

What research projects are you working on at the moment?

Part of my research is done within the framework of Nordforsk, a Scandinavian project. Here, we try to achieve sustainability, whatever that is, through considering different routing and inventory strategies (e.g., if we place large inventories, we may avoid transport in poorly utilized vehicles, but some of that inventory may go to waste). Otherwise, my research projects are quite diverse, with some focusing on methodological improvements and others on using such models to (try to) explain the outside world.

What are you involved in teaching-wise at the moment?

My flagship is the Sustainable Supply Chain Management course, an elective that considers how sustainability can be promoted through better or alternative logistics. Otherwise, I have courses in the bachelor and the master focusing on management decision models.

Are you planning to take part in any conferences or the like abroad in the near future?

Yes, I am, but not any that will keep the reader awake at night.

Are you expecting any visiting researchers from abroad in the near future (or have you had any visitors from abroad recently)?

I do not expect visitors personally, but as a research group, we (CORAL) regularly get visits from interesting guests, and I coordinate these visits.

Are you cooperating with researchers from other departments at AU at the moment?

I've been working with Andreas Klose, from the Mathematics institute.

What do you do when you are not at work?

I'll focus on the activities I am passionate about, and leave the more mundane activities (sleeping, waiting, boiling an egg) unmentioned. I'm passionate about (good) music and sports.

Please give us your suggestion for the next department staff member to be presented:

Baran Sibhayan

What specific supplementary question would you like him or her to answer?

What is your Facebook status at the moment?

ALL ABOUT FUNDING

ERASMUS GRANTS FOR EMPLOYEES

All employees at Aarhus University may apply for an Erasmus-grant during a stay abroad. It is possible to apply for a grant for two types of stays: a teaching stay and/or a training stay. The grant is approx. 650 Euro per stay, but it may vary from year to year.

The application deadline is 1 March, and is valid throughout the following academic year (e.g. the deadline 1 March 2013 is valid for a stay within the period 1 June 2013 – 30 September 2014). Applications are accepted after the deadline, and you may be signed up on a waiting list.
