NEW ISSUE OF CULTIVATE IS OUT

The fourth issue of the online magazine CULTivate is now out. CULTivate is published by the Centre for Teaching and Learning (CUL), the educational research and development unit at the School of Business and Social Sciences, AU.

In this issue you can read about how supervision, mentoring and feedback can help improve the teaching quality. It also deals with the subject of how it is possible to alleviate the feeling of inadequacy that some PhD students struggle with, how new methods and technologies can help revitalise the classic teacher-controlled feedback, how experienced teachers can help teachers with little experience, and how the discipline of supervision can be improved.

THE MAIL ROOM - STUDENTS NO ACCESS

Please note that students and student assistants are not allowed to enter our mail room (2632(L)-152).

This is due to the fact that we often have, for example, letters etc. regarding sensitive matters such as complaints and transfer of credits and exam protocols lying around in the mail room.

So instead of asking students to place assignments etc. in your pigeon hole, you should ask them to give it to Ingrid Laurrup in our reception (room 2632(L)-103), then she will make sure to put it in your pigeon hole.

STAFF PORTRAIT

STAFF PORTRAIT: BETINA SØRENSEN

This time Betina Sørensen has agreed to answer the questions for the staff portrait. Thank you, Betina. Betina is study and research supporter at the Department.

What is your background?

I hold a bachelor's degree in English business language and a master's degree in German from Copenhagen Business School, and I've worked with conferences and study support the last 8 years.

What are your main tasks at the Department?

I started at AU in October 2011 as a temp for Berit Jensen, who administrates the FIN+FIB programmes. When she returned from maternity leave, I was assigned to the AUD+MAC+LOG programmes and the 1st year of the Graduate Certificate in the Business Administration programme (HD 1st part).

Half a year later we realized that we needed a full time person to help out with the econ+soc programmes and so my current job function is study supporter for these programmes (and hopefully it will be for a long time:-)).

Furthermore, I handle the coordination of math-econ master defences and I'm secretary to the Head of Research.

As you can see, I have worked with a great deal of the employees at the Department already.

Which job tasks have occupied you the most the past weeks?

The last weeks I have been busy coordinating and proofreading reexaminations and handling the course descriptions for the fall semester. Also, enrolling students, instructors etc. on Blackboard has taken up some time. Finally, exam figures and teaching hours for DVIP had to be provided for Vipomatic.

What do you do when you are not at work?

I guess this will also answer Mikael Søndergaard's question from the last ECON News why I could not find the time for Pipsen (the little helpless budgie which finally found a good home at Mikael's:-). Well, I have a loud voice which I'm trying to set free in a gospel choir once a week (btw: We are in lack of tenors. Anyone interested?).

Then I love watching sports and all competitive games actually: Olympics, X Factor, Eurovision, Tour de France, the Danish football league - and now coming up the Academy Awards (Oscars), so I have spent a great amount of money on cinema tickets the past months.

Aside from this I go to the Oktoberfest in Munich every year, but I won't tell you how many Mass I drink in a day ;-). It's a good way to practise my German too.

Please give us your suggestion for the next department staff member to be presented:

Dan Nguyen

What specific supplementary question would you like him or her to answer?

When will you play the piano for us again (cf. the departmental forum in Billund)?
